Volume 40 Issue 5

Dear 4-H Families:

September—October, 2011

New and re-enrollment packets were distributed at the 4-H Leaders meeting on Monday, September 19. As you start thinking about the upcoming 4-H year, take a moment to talk about the 4-H program with friends and neighbors and invite them to join your club. Word of mouth is the best way to communicate the benefits of the 4-H program.

National 4-H Week is October 2-8, and this is another opportunity to communicate the benefits of 4-H to both youth and parents in our communities.

To support the National 4-H STEM initiative “WIRED FOR WIND” has been announced as this year’s National 4-H Science Experiment. On Thursday, October 6th, at the courthouse in Washburn, the “Wired for Wind” Experiment will take place at 6:00pm and will coincide with a Bayfield County 4-H Open House from 5:30-7:30pm in the County Board room. Also on display at the Open House will be all of this year’s Outstanding 4-H Record Books.

The Wired for Wind Experiment challenges youth to design a hand held wind turbine that produces electricity that is measured with a multi meter. 4-H Youth across the country will take part in this hands on experience to design, test and modify a hand held wind turbine. These kits are also available for 4-H clubs to use at either a club or project meeting. For more information contact Ian at the 4-H office.

The Bayfield County Leaders Association will be electing a new Vice President and Treasurer at their annual meeting on November 14th. If you are interested in assuming one of these leadership opportunities you can either contact 4-H Leader’s Association President Anna Fridsma or the 4-H office.

Enjoy the fall colors as we transition into fall,

Science is facts; just as houses are made of stone, so is science made of facts; but a pile of stones is not a house, and a collection of facts is not necessarily science.

Cloverbud Judging at the Fair

Once again our youngest 4-H members created and brought many wonderful entries to the fair. Many of them participated in the face to face judging with older 4-H members on Friday where we got to learn first hand about their interests and talents. Thanks to Cloverbud judges Reed Edmunds, Hailea and Brook Weiss, Sam Paulson, Samantha Gilles, Violet Stipetich, Lilli Kovaleski (and friend Kaia Orme), and Kelsie Shields.

CLOVERBUD DAY CAMP

On August 3rd, nine Cloverbuds and three “mini-buds” spent the day together at Memorial Park in Washburn for 4-H Cloverbud Day Camp. The weather was perfect again and the kids enjoyed a nature’s colors treasure hunt, making a terrarium, wading in the lake and collecting treasures, making rock pendants and clothespin butterflies, making giant bubbles, playing parachute games, and cooking tonka pies.

A big thanks to our wonderful helpers: Anna Fridsma, Kim Fridsma, and Kelli Tuttle; and to parents who attended with their children.

Kids who attended were: Ivy Sauter Sargent, Talia and Ellie Brinker, Alicia Beckel, Jacquie and Sylvia Putschat, George, Drew, Joe, and Sam Tuttle, and Taylor Nicoletti.

Youth Delegates Needed for Superior Days Feb 21-22

What is Superior Days? Superior Days is an opportunity for the youth of Northern Wisconsin to travel to Madison and present selected Legislative Issues to elected officials at the State Capital. To learn more about Superior Days go to the Superior Days website at:

www.superiordays.com/

Each year Bayfield County selects a youth delegation of 4-6 members who attend four training sessions on November 3th & 29th, Jan 12th and February 9th to prepare everyone for the actual event that takes place on February 21-22. If you are interested in filling out an application to attend Superior Days, contact Ian Meeker. Hotel, registration, and transportation costs for this program are provided by the UW Extension office and funds from Bayfield County. For past participants this has been an outstanding leadership experience and increased their understanding of how to enact change in our political system. Superior Days is open to high school students in grades 9-12.

Bayfield County will again be hosting the Northern District Horse Show July 21, 2012. There will be a Bayfield County Equine Council Meeting in November.

Horse/Horseless Horse Project

On August 1, 2011 we had our first county-wide Horse/Horseless Horse project meeting at Louise Vernon's. The first thing we went over was safety, and then we practiced showmanship and did some riding. Those of us with our own horses were paired up with the Horseless Horse kids to help them. We ended the meeting with Hip-polog (going over the parts of a horse) and having a snack.

We had two more horse/Horseless Horse project meetings at Louise's and at both meetings she reminded us that safety comes first and then we practiced showmanship and did some riding. Things to remember for the Fair are SAFETY, SAFETY and Practice, Practice, Practice and to also have fun!

*Respectfully,
Josie Bretting*

2011 Bayfield County Fair

We want to once again say thank you to everyone who contributed to another very successful county fair. In case you have never traveled to another county fair, it's important that you know that each year people go out of their way to compliment the Bayfield County Fair. Many of the judges, who judge all around the state, agree that Bayfield's is one of the last traditional county fairs remaining.

You can also thank the county board supervisors who sit on the fair committee who are: Dee Kittleson, Marco Bichanich, Shawn Miller, Patti Rantala and Bill Kacvinsky. Theresa Kummerow is the fair secretary. This committee meets throughout the year to hear comments, make improvements and oversee the successful management of the fair. If you have suggestions related to the fair, please call Theresa Kummerow at 373-6125.

Session Descriptions

Monday, November 7 Positive Youth Development

The Teen Brain: A Work in Progress Presenter: Annette Haas, University of Wisconsin-Extension

While 95% of the human brain has developed by the age of six, it is now known that a young person's brain experiences a growth spurt around adolescence and is not fully developed until well into the 20s. The still-developing brain has a great effect on a teen's behavior, from the disorganization of the frontal cortex to the emotional reactions from the amygdala to the cerebellum's lack of coordination. As adults who work with young people (ages 10 and older), it's important to understand these brain changes, the resulting behaviors and the implications for providing supportive, safe, and meaningful experiences and opportunities.

Quality Matters: In Chocolate and 4-H Programs Presenter: Brenda Shafer, University of Minnesota

Quality matters when it comes to youth programs. In fact research has found that poor quality youth programs are not neutral but rather can have a negative effect on participants. Fortunately, there is a growing body of evidence revealing what "Quality" looks like, why young people in quality programs rate their experiences more positively and stay engaged longer, and how staff and volunteers can ensure they are offering experiences that truly engage young people. In addition to sharing research findings, participants in this session will identify elements of quality existing or lacking in their own clubs or groups and consider how they can improve quality to ensure positive outcomes for young people. Chocolate provided!

Thursday, November 17 4-H Program Development

Keeping Your Cool While Working with Youth

Presenters: Pat McGlaughlin and Sheri Seibold, University of Illinois

4-H volunteers bring their own skills and experiences in working with youth. When dealing with behavior management, there are many different ways that leaders can plan for and respond to situations to encourage cooperation within a group. A successful, cooperative group meeting is due in great part to proper planning. It also means taking an interest in and using positive behaviors to build relationships with youth. Participants will explore various, useful techniques that can be used when working with youth. Youth want to belong to a group and be valued for their contributions. Participants will learn how to create an environment where the essential elements of positive youth development are met.

Reducing the Risks of 4-H Club Meetings

Presenter: Vicki Schwartz, Ohio State University

The learning environment of the 4-H club meeting is filled with challenges and risks. Is there adequate adult supervision? How are the members behaving today? Is the facility still a safe location? How do I prepare for 4-H club field trips and service activities? These are all valid questions that, when considered carefully, can help 4-H leaders prepare for the many "What ifs?" that could potentially happen. This session will focus on risk management as a process to help 4-H leaders prepare for meetings, and to be able to respond to the unexpected challenges that arise in spite of the best plans. Participants will identify potential risks, will determine what risks can be managed, will acquire resources for those decisions, and will conclude that some risks are too great and must be avoided.

Tuesday, November 22 New and Emerging Curriculum

Get Connected in Your 4-H World Presenter: Rachelle Vetter, North Dakota State University

As a 4-H Volunteer you have the world of 4-H resources at your fingertips. This session will assist you in locating new 4-H curriculum and tools that are available on the National 4-H web site, multiple states' 4-H web sites and through social networking sites such as facebook and Ning. Being linked in to the electronic resources that are available will make running your club easier and more efficient.

4-H Science

Presenter: Dixie Sandborn, Michigan State University

Science is everywhere! Through inquiry-based learning along with hands-on activities and experiments, 4-H Science Curriculum can enhance science learning. From animals to wind, from plants to robotics, 4-H Science encourages kids to understand the world around them while learning by doing.

Community Service Learning

Presenter: Steve McKinley, Purdue University

4-H has long been known for its efforts to give back to the community. The Citizenship National 4-H Mission Mandate has served to reinforce and uplift these efforts as a critical part of the 4-H experience. During this session, participants will identify similarities and differences between community service and service-learning opportunities and identify steps that can be taken to help 4-H members achieve even greater benefits from serving their communities. Time will be provided for participants to exchange ideas on successful community service opportunities that their 4-H Clubs have completed. Resources will also be provided to volunteers and staff that they can share with 4-H members to more effectively plan and implement service opportunities.
